

Jade Far Eastern and General Pension Fund

Investment Manager's Report

April 2018

Investment Commentary

For the last six months from November 2017 to April 2018, the portfolio returned 1.77% in British Pounds, and TOPIX performance was 0.64 percent in Japanese Yen and 1.03 percent in British Pounds. Global stock markets rose sharply until January favouring the U.S. tax reform and against the backdrop of robust global economic growth. The markets retreated from their highs in February as investors adjusted their positions amid rising U.S. long bond yields and traded in a narrow range thereafter. The Japanese stock market rose along with global stock markets until January against the backdrop of robust global economy and growing corporate earnings before retreating in February and March, along with a decline in global stock markets, amid growing concerns over protectionist trade policies by the U.S. administration. The Japanese yen closed flat against the British Pound.

In asset allocation wise, the portfolio remained fully invested in Japanese equities except for the cash portion which was held at 2%.

We think corporate earnings will continue to expand amid robust global economic growth and believe the risk of a change in these favourable fundamentals is small. However, demand started to decelerate from a high base last year and rising labour costs and increasing investments are curbing the pace of corporate earnings growth. Amid policy uncertainties in the United States until the mid-term election, we expect the Japanese stock market to trade in a narrow range. In terms of portfolio management, we will maintain balanced exposure to both external and domestic demand while we focus in identifying individual stocks with robust earnings growth.

Risk Level

This fund has been graded as above average risk which we describe as follows:

Funds that invest predominantly in one type of investment or geographical region, for example Japanese equities (shares). Fund prices may fluctuate significantly but offer the potential for good returns over the long term.

This level of risk is typically suitable for investors who are prepared to accept a higher than average degree of risk in order to potentially achieve above-average long-term returns. Investors accept that this will involve a high degree of exposure to equity investments (shares) whose performance may be volatile and thus could lead to loss.

If you are not sure that this fits in with your investment objectives we recommend that you obtain independent financial advice.
